Edwards; Collections: C. C. Stone; Home Demonstration and 4-H Clubs, Miss Annie Lois May; Rural Schools, Sam Favre, Jr.; Bay St. Louis Public Schools (including Webb, Taylor and Valena C. Jones), S. J. Ingram; Waveland Schools, Miss Mary Perkins; Christ Episcopal church, Richard Shadoff; Catholic churches, Robert L. Camors; Baptist church, Hubert B. Duckworth; Methodist church, Dr. J. A. Evans; Waveland Catholic church, Mrs. E. C. Carrere; St. Rosa de Lima church, Rev. Father Holken. The receiving depots are located at Reed Hotel, Post Office, Beach Drug Store, Wilmer's Grocery, Schools and churches. The Knights of Columbus have generously donated the use of their hall for collecting, storing and packing.

Again the cry has gone out to America for true spirited Americans to respond to our brothers and sisters across the seas. The slogan of the drive is "What can you spare that they can wear?" but why stop to consider the question of whether you can spare a few garments. Give of the substance of clothing, for those without must be a gift of love; a sacrifice made with self forgetfulness. Go into your closets and chests and take from there the garments you have put by for your own use. What of quilts and blankets. Do you have a surplus? Do you have enough to share? If not do on last year's spring hat and buy a blanket or quilt.

When you bring your clothing to the collection depot let each separate piece be accompanied by a personal letter to the unknown person to whom that piece of clothing is going. That gives your gift a personal touch. It brings your gift closer to the person who receives it. Put your name and address on your letter. Let the unfortunate recipient feel that you are their friend.

Have you read "Gone With the Wind"? what has that to do with a Victory Clothing Drive? you say. Dress made of the portieres which do you remember Scarlett's velvet hung in her home? So what did you do with your blackpit curtains? can they be converted into a piece or pieces of wearing apparel? Do you have any left over yardage? If so what use will you put it? Can it be used for a child's dress or skirt?

These thoughts or suggestions we leave with you for your ponderance. Christ left with his people a new commandment, he said: "That ye love one another." If we love we give of what we have to those who have not. "Which among you if your child ask of you bread will give him a stone?"

JOE BURROW, IS CHAIRMAN OF MARCH OF DIMES APPEAL

Plans for the 1946 March of Dimes in the fight against Infantile Paralysis moved forward today with the appointment of Joe Burrow, Cashier of the Merchants Bank & Trust Co., as chairman for the Appeal in Hancock County.

The local campaign, which opens on January 14 and closes January 31, is part of the nation-wide appeal of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis for funds to continue the fight against poliomyelitis.

As in the past, March of Dimes coin collection boxes will be placed at convenient spots throughout the county and coin cards will be distributed. In the light of widespread public knowledge of the National Foundation's tremendous achievements in recent epidemic years, Mr. Burrow said, the local appeal committee is expecting a greater response this year than ever before.

"Poliomyelitis," he pointed out, "is one of the most expensive diseases known to medicine. Hospitalization for a single patient costs more than $2,500 a year. Some cases require continuing care for several years. Not only must many victims of past epidemics receive continuing care, but each year's outbreaks add new names to the steadily growing list. Few families can meet the cost of extended polio treatment. Through the annual March of Dimes, treatment and care can be assured for all polio victims regardless of age, race, creed or color."

HERE, HAVE A MILLION...IT'S FREE

IN yesterday's announcement from Corinth that the Reynolds Metals Co. has chosen that city for location of a new plant, there was a highly significant statement that "the plant will employ almost 100 per cent veterans."

That sounds fine for the veterans, for the Reynolds plant will no doubt be one of the better paying industries in Corinth. But vastly more important is the boost veterans will give new industry, not only in Corinth but in every town of northeast Mississippi and the state.

One of the major difficulties in obtaining new industries for Mississippi has long been the rightful claim of established firms that it would be costly for them to move into an area where youths had had so little vocational training in their schools that each must be taught from the ground up in the use of hand and mechanical tools.

Now, however, the GI Bill offers new industries of Mississippi a chance to train veterans at very little cost to themselves until the veterans are able to hold down a job at full pay.

If a company for instance, wishes to start inexperienced young veterans at $125 a month while training them for a $150 job, it will have to pay only $50 a month on their salaries and the Veterans Administration will pay $75. If at the end of six months the youths were raised to $150 a month, the Veterans Administration will still pay $75 a month, leaving $75 to be paid by the company.

The Veterans Administration in other words, will pay in any approved plant up to $75 on the salary of any veteran in training when the difference between what he is getting from the company at any given time and the wages he is to draw when he finishes training amounts to $75 a month or more.

And the almost unbelievable part of the arrangement is that the veterans' Administration will continue to pay up to $75 on a veterans' monthly wages for a period of one year longer than the time he was in the armed service, provided he is in training all this time.

Thus, if an industry here employs 100 veterans who had been in service an average of two years each, the firm could receive help from the Veterans Administration in meeting the payroll for three years.

On 100 employees at $125 a month, only $50 of which need be paid by the company, this would amount to a payroll saving of $270,000 in three years!

With a gold mine like this lying around for the asking, some firms are delaying production until a community will construct a measly $25,000 or $50,000 building for them.

If the business and industrial leaders of every community in northeast Mississippi don't search out every possibility for industrial development in their area and start dozens of small plants with this bargain payroll plan during the next year or two, they are overlooking the greatest opportunity ever offered them. And nothing short of World War III will bring such opportunity their way again.

The GI "training on the job" program is a godsend to new industries starting from scratch with green labor as certainly as it is to the untrained veteran who wishes to learn a trade and hold down an industrial job paying a reasonable wage.

This combination can double male employment in northeast Mississippi industry during the next few years.

Only vision and courage in investing local capital are now needed to complete an industrial team which can make northeast Mississippi the most prosperous farm-industrial area in the South.—Tupelo Daily Journal, Wednesday Morning, December 12, 1945.

ORTE THEATRE SUNDAY-MONDAY "OUR VINES HAVE TENDER GRAPES"

Margaret O'Brien, Edward
G. Robinson, with Jackie
"Butch" Jenkins and
James Craig

Margaret O'Brien is back again, and this time she is teamed with Edward G. Robinson in a gripping and tender story called "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes," which M-G-M currently is presenting at Ortte Theatre, Sunday and Monday.

The little star of "Music for Millions" and "Lost Angel" emphasizes again, and more strongly than ever, the really great talents which she possesses. She can make you laugh and she can make you cry, just as she wishes, by a simple change in her expression or a particular inflection in her voice. Working with that grand veteran actor Robinson, star of "Woman in the Window" and "Double Indemnity," Margaret is at her very best as a seven-year-old in a small Wisconsin town who understands the dangerous road which the self-centered men and women are taking to inevitable destruction.

"Our Vines Have Tender Grapes" is a true-to-life drama. It is peopled with true-to-life characters. Every single actor was hand-picked for his role. James Craig is just right as the young editor of the local newspaper who is Margaret's strongest ally; Frances Gifford is fine as the new school teacher from Milwaukee who cannot become accustomed to the small town; Agnes Moorehead plays Robinson's wife in a down-to-earth fashion, and Jackie "Butch" Jenkins is one continuous delight as Margaret's cousin and playmate.

"Our Vines Have Tender Grapes" is full of drama and humor and entertainment. One moment you'll find yourself crying, and the next you'll be laughing through your tears. Truly this is the kind of picture which has so many award winning possibilities that it is hard to select any one person or any one thing for individual praise.

Handsomely produced by Robert Sisk, "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes" has been directed by Roy Rowland. Dalton Trumbo, one of the country's top screen writers, did the screen play. "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes" is a grand motion picture experience.

A. & G. THEATRE SUNDAY AND MONDAY DUFFY'S TAVERN

With Over Twenty-Five
Top Paramount Stars

Many radio fans who are already hepped on the word-mangling Ed Gardner (Archie) of air-wave fame, will get a good glimpse of that prize prodigy in Paramount's "Duffy's Tavern," star-studded musical comedy which comes to the A. & G. Theatre Sunday and Monday.

Previewers say fans won't be disappointed. Not only does Archie bring to the screen his own unique talents, but he also surrounds himself with "such gorgeous hunks of punkrude" as Betty Hutton, Paulette Goddard, Dorothy Lamour and Veronica Lake. In addition to all this feminine glamour, there's an assembly of masculine heart-throbs which could "out-sheik" the great Valentino himself,—the list includes Alan Ladd, Brian Donlevy, Sonny Tufts, Arturo de Cordova and Barry Sullivan. Barry plays the romantic lead opposite Marjorie Reynolds. Yes, there's all this bright material, along with Bing Crosby, Eddie Bracken, Victor Moore, Bob Beuchley, Barry Fitzgerald and practically every star on the Paramount lot to boot. Then, of course, Ed's got his own gang with him which includes Charley Cantor, the cotton-mouthed "Finnegan," Eddie Green, the waiter, and Ann Thomas (Miss Duffy).

Well, when a picture has an array of talent like the above-mentioned, the chances are it's going to be a pretty entertaining bit of cinema, which it reputedly is. They say the general effect of perpetual hilarity is heightened by Archie's presence, his pantomime being equally as expressive as his language which has managed to convulse radio audiences for some time now. What Archie does to the King's English probably has Shakespeare turning over in his grave, but the chances are he's laughing in spite of himself. This original morogel tongue is a New Yorker's hybrid lingo which defies category.

The story, scripted by Melvin Frank and Norman Panama, concerns the shenanigans of that wise illiterate, Archie, who takes over Duffy's Tavern, a sixth-rate high class joint on Third Avenue, New York, while Duffy hies himself to the country for a vacation. Archie gets into a jam when he decides to feed fourteen ex-servicemen free-of-charge until they can resume their old jobs at a nearby phonograph factory. In the meantime, the books work up a cash deficit of $1200. To square himself with the law and Duffy, Archie and his pal, that lovable bungler Victor Moore, raid a New York hotel housing stars in an attempt to round up enough entertainment for a big benefit party. According to preview commentaries, it's all ironed out in the end, but not before the constant action, excitement and laughs leave the audience limp and happy. Hal Walker has given the picture some fast-paced direction.

Insiders predict theatre-goers will enjoy seeing Archie and the gang from "Duffy's Tavern" as much as they enjoyed hearing them over the radio.
